Considerations

Most sessions will consist of a discussion/question and answer period based on content that will be available online for viewing the week before the actual dates of the 101st Annual Meeting. This means that attendees should plan to set aside time to watch this ondemand content in preparation for the actual dates of the meeting. There is also time built into the week of the actual meeting for ondemand content viewing.

Social Events may be planned before Annual Meeting starts and after Annual Meeting ends each day. Details on those are forthcoming.

There will be as many as 24 concurrent conferences/symposia/town hall meetings holding live sessions during Session Blocks 1-6 and 8-14

All sessions will be recorded and posted as quickly as possible.

Sessions 7 and 15 will be plenary Presidential Sessions during which no other competing or concurrent sessions will be scheduled.

During the exhibit time each day, exhibit booth staff will be available to interact with attendees via text chat or video conference.

During the poster sessions, poster presenters will be available to interact with attendees via text chat or video conference.

Formal networking breakouts are planned for each day of the Annual Meeting. During these times, attendees will be encouraged to join networking breakouts on different topics.

Informal interaction between attendees will be available before, during, and after the Annual Meeting via text chat and video conference.
